Description:

BasketBlow is a real-time basketball action game that combines board game-style mechanics with realistic physics. Each shot is based on an air impulse simulation, and players can attract the ball when it enters their area through a simulated suction mechanic.

Matches pit the red and blue teams against each other on a board with holes that guide the ball's movement. The controls are simple: two buttons, one to shoot and one to attract.

The game features leagues and cups with up to 20 customizable teams per tournament. Leagues conclude with playoffs, while cups are decided through single-elimination matches. Each championship awards a unique trophy, for a total of 29 different trophies.

Players earn points by scoring, winning matches and championships, and advancing through stages. These points can be used to unlock content: 36 ball skins, 32 courts, and 20 environments.

BasketBlow allows players to create and manage multiple profiles to keep progress, trophies, unlockables, achievements, and custom teams separate. Each profile can be password-protected, and competitions created within a profile can only be played from that profile, ensuring a personal and independent experience. Achievements are tracked both on Steam and within the game, allowing each profile to maintain its own progress.
